

Wedding Gown Release

We always use the utmost care possible in the cleaning of your wedding or formal gown, but due to variations in materials, fabrics, and dyes used to manufacture these products, we require your authorization before we can proceed.

In addition, we claim no responsibility for trimmings, buckles, beads, buttons, belts, and sequins.

We also cannot guarantee against color change and shrinkage; or damage to weak or tender fabrics.

Occasionally certain stains or soils cannot be removed in the dry cleaning process. When this happens the garment should be "wet cleaned".

During this process we use the utmost professional care to insure there will be no shrinkage, color change, or distortion of the fabric. However, in spite of the precautions we take, some fabrics still shrink or distort while others may have been dyed with on-fast colors. Therefore we require your signature for acceptance of responsibility for the above conditions.

I have read the above statement and understand that you will process ,my garments with the utmost care. However, I am aware of all hazards and therefore release you from all responsibility.
